Justification for decision: (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map)

The Bladensburg Dueling Grounds (PG68-14), located on Oak Street near Bladensburg Road, are eligible due to the fact that the site meets National Register Criterion A. Preliminary research has not revealed any association between the site and the lives of persons significant in our past (Criterion B). The grounds do not represent the work of a master or display high artistic merit (Criterion C). Nor are they likely to yield information important in history or prehistory (Criterion D). The property does, however, reveal an association with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history (Criterion A). Thus, the Bladensburg Dueling Grounds are National Register-eligible.

The Bladensburg Dueling Grounds were the site of more than 50 duels fought during the 1800s. The most famous duel fought there took place between Commodores Stephen Decatur and James Barron in 1820. The notoriety of the site led Congress to outlaw dueling in 1839, although duels continued to be fought on these grounds until the Civil War period.

HISTORIC SITES SUMMARY SHEET

P.G. County Survey # 68-14 Date 19th century

~~Building~~ Name Bladensburg Dueling Grounds

Location Rte.#1 at Bladensburg Ave., Bladensburg, Md.

Open to Public ☒ yes ☐ no

This is a grassy park area, the site of many duels during the nineteenth century. It was part of the tract Chittam Castle Manor (later known as Chillum) patented in 1763 by William Digges. It remained in the Digges family until 1845.

Research has established at least 26 recorded duels at the Bladensburg grounds, although tradition increases the count to 50. Some of the more famous include the following. In December 1809, General John Jackson, Congressman from Virginia and brother-in-law of Mrs. Dolley Madison, got into a political dispute with Joseph Pearson, Congressman from North Carolina. Jackson was seriously wounded, and recuperated at the nearby home of Mrs. Digges where he was visited by President and Mrs. Madison. Probably the most famous duel occurred in 1820 when Commodores James Barron and Stephen Decatur settled a long-standing feud at the Bladensburg dueling grounds. Decatur received a mortal wound and died soon afterwards at his house on Lafayette Square.

The movement against dueling reached a peak in 1838 after the duel between Congressmen Jonathan Cilley of Maine and William Graves of Kentucky. Cilley, who was a friend of author Nathaniel Hawthorne, was killed in the duel, and Hawthorne wrote a memorial to Cilley in the Democratic Review. Reaction to the Graves-Cilley duel led to increasing pressure to outlaw the practice of dueling. In theory, dueling had always been illegal in the United States, and after the Civil War the practice died out fully.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This was the site of numerous duels during the nineteenth century. It was part of the tract Chittam Castle Manor (later known as Chillum) patented in 1763 by William Digges. It remained in the Digges family until 1845.

Research has established at least 26 recorded duels at the Bladensburg grounds, although tradition increases the count to 50. The first recorded duel took place in 1808 between Congressman Gardinier (N.Y.) and Campbell (Tenn.). Gardinier was wounded, but recovered. The last is believed to have occurred in 1868 between General Lawrence, U.S. Minister to Costa Rica, and Baron Kusserow, Secretary of the German legation, in which a reconciliation was effected.

Between these dates occurred a long list of duels between prominent men. Some of the more famous include the following. In December 1809, General John G. Jackson, Congressman from Virginia and brother-in-law of Mrs. Dolley Madison, got into a political dispute with Joseph Pearson, Congressman from North Carolina. Jackson was seriously wounded, and recuperated at the nearby home of Mrs. Digges where he was visited by President and Mrs. Madison. This is a small, 3 acre park-located in a ravine just off Bladensburg Rd. It is at the head of a small creek that flows into the Anacostia River. An historic marker was placed here by the Parks Department, in a ceremony held Jan. 13, 1955. An asphalt basketball court sits in the middle of the park.

DUELING GROUNDS

ON THIS SITE, NOW PART OF ANACOSTIA RIVER PARK, MORE THAN 50 DUELS WERE FOUGHT DURING THE FIRST HALF OF THE 19TH CENTURY. HERE, ON WHAT BECAME KNOWN AS "THE DARK AND BLOODY GROUNDS," GENTLEMEN OF WASHINGTON SETTLED THEIR POLITICAL AND PERSONAL DIFFERENCES. ONE OF THE MOST FAMOUS DISPUTES WAS THAT BETWEEN COMMODORES STEPHEN DECATUR AND JAMES BARRON, WHICH WAS SETTLED HERE ON MARCH 22, 1820. COMMODORE DECATUR, WHO HAD GAINED FAME AS THE CONQUEROR OF THE BARBARY PIRATES, WAS FATALLY WOUNDED BY HIS ANTAGONIST. ALTHOUGH CONGRESS PASSED AN ANTI-DUELING LAW IN 1839, DUELS CONTINUED HERE UNTIL JUST BEFORE THE CIVIL WAR.
